PROTECT YOUR BERRIES AND CHERRIES FROM BIRDS

(Something New Under the Sun)

Many people write us that it is hard to keep birds and some other animals away from their ripening strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, blueberries, cherries, etc.; especially when they have only a small garden patch for home use. Sometimes it seems as if there were more robins and other birds than berries. We think we have solved the problem of the home gardener, by covering with a sort of netting, coarsely woven, so as to let in the air and sunlight, and yet, at the same time, keep away the birds. It comes in pieces 3 feet wide and from 3 to 9 feet in length. It can be sewed together for trees, like cherry and mulberries. A piece 3 feet wide and 9 ft. long, weighed just three fourths of a pound. It should be placed over plants etc., when the fruit first shows color. This material is heavy and substantial and can be used over and over, several times. Our price is $1.00 per lb. prepaid. A pound will measure just about 12 yards. Your store will ask you 20c per yard for mosquito netting which is flimsy and easily spoils in use.
